Letter from the Vicar

The effects of the Coronavirus continue to change everything. It not only changes what I can and cannot do, but even changes the way I do things or avoid them. Nothing seems the same.

The virus has affected the timing, frequency and content of our worship. It changes the way we come together. I'm sure that some of us will find worship is suddenly more challenging than before. It's also likely these changes in our worship alter our perception of the God we worship.

An artist is taught to look closely at their subject of study before attempting a painting or sculpture. They will walk round it, looking in different directions, with different light and different surroundings. They do so because the best art follows after the closest observation. Therefore changes in our worship offer an opportunity to change the way we look at God. We should be able to understand Him better after looking at Him from a variety of different worship encounters.

Worship continues. Our worship may involve pieces of paper coming through the post or images through a computer screen. It may be in a familiar Church made unfamiliar through a mask. But it's still worship with God the Almighty as its focus.

God is infinite. If God seems smaller during different ways of worshipping then the focus of our worship is not really God but an aspect of God—one part of Him and a small one at that.

That's why the Scriptures tell us to love God with everything. That way we are far more likely to discern the real God because we are trying to respond to Him in a three-dimensional way.

Wishing you much prayerful Godliness in these different times:

PAUL

News from the Church and Parish

Harvest festival

This year's Harvest Service will occur on Sunday 11 October. It won't be able to hold a faith lunch afterward. We welcome donations of gloves, scarves and socks to help the Oldham Street Angels and financial gifts for the work of Christian Aid.

All Soul's service

This year's All Soul's Service will occur on Sunday 1 November at 4:00 pm. Please tell Vicar Paul the names of those you'd like remembered during the service.

Owing to Covid restrictions it's yet clear if these services will occur.

Congratulations

Sarah Gura has been awarded a place at Bolton University to read psychology.

Sarah will continue to work as Church administrator but in a more limited capacity.

Food co-operative

The work to accommodate the food co-operative is now complete. A big thank you to the following funders: Viridor Environmental Credits, the National Lottery Community Fund, Allchurches Trust, and the Duchy of Lancaster Benevolent Fund. We are sincerely grateful to them all.

Updates

The rate of infection is currently not clear. For that reason, our responsibilities are also unclear.

- Until further notice, services in the Church will require social distancing and facemasks, and cannot yet include singing.
- The annual Remembrance Sunday service at the War memorial on Heywood Street will not occur as normal. We are currently aim for a live-broadcast on Zoom or Facebook.
- We will continue to produce service transcripts and video services on YouTube. You can access all of them online at any time. They're free. Please go to www.medlockhead.co.uk/resources
- The food co-operative remains available to all Church members.
- We hope that the groups who formally used the Parish Room and Hall will be able to return soon. Please check the Church website often.

The field of the Lord has been lying fallow, bristling with the thistles of unbelief.
Now it has been ploughed by your teaching,
and is bringing forth an abundant harvest of true faith.

Gregory II (669 –731)

Author The early church agreed unanimously that the apostle Paul wrote the Letter to the Philippians (1:1). The author refers to himself and each reference agrees with other New Testament books.

Recipients Paul had established a Christian community at Philippi during his Second Missionary Journey (Acts 15:40—18:22). Acts 16:7 describes the Spirit of Jesus telling Paul to evangelise Macedonia. Incidentally, his journey was the first recorded introduction of Christianity into Europe.

Philippi was a large, strategic city located in north-eastern Greece in the Roman province of Macedonia. It was named after Philip II of Macedonia, father of Alexander the Great.

Philippi was a rich Roman colony and its residents prided themselves on being Roman (see Acts 16:21): they dressed like Romans and often spoke Latin. That's the background to Paul's reference to the believer's heavenly citizenship (3:20–21). That Philippi was a Roman colony also explains why there were not enough Jews there to allow a synagogue to form there (see the last online reference) and why Paul nowhere quoted the Old Testament to them.

Context Paul's time in Philippi is described in Acts 15 and 16. The letter is one of four that Paul wrote while in prison somewhere (1:7, 13, 14, 17) and maybe fearing execution (1:20–23). He probably wrote the letter while captive in Rome, implying a date of 59–63 AD. This idea agrees with the account of Paul's house arrest in Acts 28:14–31.

Purpose in writing Paul's primary aim in writing the letter was to thank the Philippians for a gift they had sent him on learning of his detention at Rome (1:5; 4:10–19). He also used the opportunity to address other issues:

1. To report on his own circumstances (1:12–26; 4:10–19).
2. To encourage the Philippians to stand firm during persecution and rejoice regardless of circumstances (1:27–30; 4:4).
3. To exhort them to humility and unity (1:27; 2:1–11; 4:2–5).
4. To commend Timothy and Epaphroditus to the Philippian Church (2:19–30).
5. To warn the Philippians against legalists (he calls them 'Judaisers') and libertines (he calls them 'antinomians') (Chapter 3).

The letter gives rich insights into Paul's theology and his love and concern for the Gospel and his converts. The letter shows his sensitivity and tenderness, his enthusiasm for Jesus as the key to life and death (1:21), and his feeling for those in Christ who dwell in Philippi.

Chapter 3 often seems autobiographical. For example, in 3:12–14 Paul pictures himself in a race, pressing toward the goal of Christ Jesus himself.

Perhaps the best-known part of the letter is the beautiful hymn in verses 2:5–11. They represent one of the most explicit expressions in all the New Testament of the simultaneous divinity and humanity of Jesus. Paul uses the word 'kenosis' to say that Jesus 'emptied himself' of his Divine privileges and took the form of a slave 'humbling himself to the extent of death on a cross' to save humankind.

The Philippian fact file

Author The apostle Paul, while in prison in Rome.

Date of Writing Probably 61 AD.

Purpose of Writing It's a missionary 'thank-you letter' that gives a progress report.

Key Verse Our citizenship is in heaven, from where we also wait for a Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ' (Phil 3:20)

The Letter to the Philippians

Hilda (or 'Hild') was born in about 614 AD. Most of what we know about her is recalled with wonder by Bede, the eighth-century historian of how England was Christianised.

Hilda was converted to Christianity at a time of immense political and religious change. Following the collapse of Roman rule in Britain in the fifth century and the arrival of the Angles and Saxons, the country fragmented into small warring kingdoms.

Hilda was born into one of the most powerful kingdoms, Northumbria (roughly equivalent to modern-day Northumberland and Yorkshire). She was great-niece to the Northumbrian king, Edwin. She and her sister were raised in the royal court after their father's murder.

Christianity was spreading across the country at this time. It was imported from two very different traditions: Celtic Christians from Ireland via Scotland and the Roman Christians in Italy.

St Paulinus, who was part of the Roman mission led by St Augustine, converted the royal family. Hilda was baptised along with King Edwin on Easter Day 627. Paulinus may have been Roman but Hilda preferred the Celtic teachings of the Irish monk Aidan, who was Bishop of Lindisfarne.

In 633, Northumbria was overrun by the pagan King of Mercia and King Edwin fell in battle. Most of the court fled to the Queen's family in the Kingdom of Kent, where the Queen soon founded a convent at Lyminge. It's assumed that Hilda remained with the Queen-Abbess.

Hilda's elder sister later became a nun at Chelles Abbey in Gaul (modern France). Hilda nearly joined her sister there but Aidan of Lindisfarne persuaded her to live as a nun in Northumbria instead. She was already a middle-aged woman of 33.

All we know of Hilda's convent is that it was located on the north bank of the River Wear. A year later, Aidan appointed Hilda as the second Abbess of Hartlepool Abbey. And in 657 Hilda became the founding abbess of Whitby where she remained until her death in 680.

During Hilda's time as Abbess, the abbey was a double monastery and was home to both monks and nuns. Double monasteries led by abbesses were common in the fifth to seventh centuries. At some, such as at Wimborne in Dorset, there was a strict separation between men and women, but there is no evidence for this at Whitby.

Hilda ruled Whitby Abbey strictly. Five men from this monastery later became bishops and two (John of Beverley and Wilfrid of York) were canonised at this critical period in the fight against paganism and the conversion of Anglo-Saxon England to Christianity.

Hilda was a woman of great energy. She was also skilled as an administrator and teacher.

Hilda's monastic rule was widely respected, so kings and princes sought her advice. That's how she played her role in the so-called Synod of Whitby, which took place in 664 AD during her time as abbess.

The synod was called to resolve the date of Easter, which was celebrated at different times by the Celtic and Roman Christians. Hilda probably took the side of the Celts, but the Northumbrian king ruled in favour of the Roman tradition. The synod represents a landmark in the history of English Christianity. Thereafter, the English Church usually followed the newly independent Church based in Rome.

Hilda suffered an intermittent fever during the last seven years of her life (probably malaria) but she continued to work until her death on 17 November 680 AD at what was then regarded as the very great age of 66.

St Hilda and the snakes

Many legends surround Hilda of Whitby. One of the more curious says that she turned a plague of snakes into stone, thereby 'explaining' why so many ammonite fossils have been found on Whitby beach. In fact, the ammonite genus Hildoceras takes its scientific name from St Hilda!

This ancient legend explains why the window in St Barnabas (on page 11) depicts a pile of ammonite fossils at its foot.

St Hilda is the patron saint of learning and culture. For the same reasons, ammonites and coiled snakes appear in the crests of colleges and schools named after her.

He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness.
2 Corinthians 9:10

When Francis preached love to the birds
They listened, fluttered, throttled up
Into the blue like a flock of words
Released for fun from his holy lips.
Then wheeled back, whirled about his head,
Pirouetted on brothers' capes.
Danced on the wing, for sheer joy played
And sang, like images took flight.
Which was the best poem Francis made,
His argument true, his tone light.

St Francis and the birds

We praise you, O God,
we acclaim you as the Lord;
all creation worships you,
the Father everlasting.
To you all angels, all the powers of heaven,
the cherubim and seraphim, sing in endless praise:
Holy, holy, holy Lord, God of power and might,
heaven and earth are full of your glory.

4 October is St Francis' Day.

Harvest of the Spirit

St Paul often wrote about what happens when the Holy Spirit enters a human life. In his Letter to the Galatians, Paul lists the harvest we reap (the list is also called 'fruits of the Spirit'). Think of the Holy Spirit as the seed and these are what appears if it is allowed to grow.

Read Galatians 5:22-23.
Rank the fruits in the order you'd like to see them in your life.

A large pile of various fruits including strawberries, raspberries, apples, tomatoes, oranges, lemons, limes, kiwis, grapes, blueberries, and bananas. The fruits are arranged in a circular pattern, with the text boxes and circles overlaid on them.

Blank white rectangular boxes for ranking the fruits.

The seed of the Spirit

The Holy Spirit acts like a seed in our lives and souls. Many things can act like a spiritual seed and grow into Godliness in our spiritual life. As the seeds differ so their effect in us can look different.

What do we use as seeds when implanting
Godliness in our lives?
Label these seeds.

Blank white circles for labeling the seeds.

Read the story of Feeding the five thousand (as cited opposite) then find these words from the story in the grid above

Baskets, Crowd, Crumbs, Disciples, Evening, Fishes, Five, God, Healing, Jesus, Loaves, Miracle, Plain, Thousand, Twelve

The only miracle that appears in all four gospels is when Jesus fed five thousand men, plus women and children with only two fish and five loaves of bread (Matthew 14:13–21; Mark 6:31–44; Luke 9:10–17; John 6:1–13).

Christian love is much like this miracle. We start with no more than a mouthful that will nourish one life during a tiny encounter. But we ask God to bless it. God is infinite and His blessing is powerful, so the love just keeps on multiplying. Suddenly it's too big for the basket of a single heart and needs to be shared. It touches a multitude of lives. More souls come to the feast and, suddenly, as a secondary miracle, we realise that we too are loved and (a bigger miracle still) we are love-able.

And all it takes for this cascade of love is one soul to take a tiny crumb of love and offer it to God for His blessing.

Feeding the five thousand

Saint Ignatius Loyola is best known as the founder of the Jesuits. But, in many ways, his greatest gift to the Church is his method of prayerful meditation.

Íñigo Oñaz López de Loyola was born in 1491 in what we today call the Basque region of Northern Spain. His name was later Latinised as 'Ignatius.' He was a soldier and was injured at the Battle of Pamplona in 1521 and forced to recuperate. He was a nobleman by birth and so, during his time of enforced sick-rest, he took to reading from the vast library he'd inherited. He read voraciously, but mainly about knightly exploits and spirituality. He was a romantic at heart and tried to imagine himself acting a part in the stories he read. He noticed a pattern: reading about knightly chivalry caused in him a sense of lethargy—even depression; but reading about Jesus and the saints inspired him deeply, which led to a sense of elation and peace.

Ignatius explored these findings and devised a series of exercises. We now call them 'the Spiritual Exercises.' At root, in each exercise readers take a straightforward scene, for example from the Gospels, and imagine themselves in it. They may take the role of one of the disciples or a by-stander at the crucifixion. They will then analyse their response to being in the presence of Jesus.

After imagining ourselves 'into' a Bible story in this way, Ignatius teaches us to analyse carefully our response(s) to the story. We must ask at each stage, 'How do I feel?' This use of the imagination is more a form of meditation followed by reflection than other, more traditional, forms of prayer. But it represents an enormously powerful way of understanding our spirituality.

There will always be an emotional response to meditations of this sort. Ignatius taught that emotional responses usually follow one of two opposite extremes. Some aspects of a story or meditation will make us feel uplifted and inspired, making us want more. He called these aspects consolations. By contrast, other aspects of the same meditation may lead to boredom or even depression. They may inspire some sort of revulsion at our present ways of living. Ignatius called this latter kind desolations.

The idea that consolations are God-given is at the heart of Ignatian spirituality. In a sense, so are the spiritual desolations. Therefore, we are in reality following God if we follow a consolation. If we follow those aspects of a meditation that result in a sense of consolation, we are also following the promptings of the Holy Spirit. In effect, by following a consolation, we are seeking to grow in our Christian faith.

Similarly, desolations point to those aspects of our spiritual life that are not of God. We should avoid them if we want to grow spiritually.

The methods of Ignatian spirituality are easily learnt—absolutely everyone has at least some ability to imagine themselves into a story with Jesus. It is best to start with simple narrative stories from the Gospels. A simple example is reproduced on the next two pages.

Later and with greater experience and confidence, it's possible to imagine ourselves in scenes with Jesus but in a contemporary situation. But a word of warning: it is wise to explore these exercises with an experienced Christian or, better, with a spiritual director.

Ignatian Prayer

Exercises Read Mark 14:3–9 reverently as an act of devotion. It describes a woman anointing Jesus' feet with costly perfume. Then, try and imagine yourself inside the scene, either as a disciple or onlooker.

- Read it several times then ask, 'what do I feel?' and 'why?'
- Try to imagine yourself as one of the disciples. If you can, make the story as realistic as possible: involve all the senses, sight and hearing, smell and touch in the process. All the time, notice how you feel in the presence of Jesus.
- Many other narrative passages about Jesus are useful. Note that Jesus' parables may not be so useful as their meaning is metaphoric.

Curate's corner

I was reminded, while having a 'lockdown' clear out, that my mother once met and shook hands with a Saint ... and I have a photograph (and press cutting) to prove it!

It was in 1983/4, proclaimed a special Holy Year by Pope (now Saint) John Paul II, that mum applied to be a volunteer with the Saint John Ambulance Brigade to help with sick and disabled visitors to the Vatican. To her great surprise and joy she was accepted as one of the sixteen English members on duty during a week in June.

The 'great moment' came when Pope John Paul, after talking to guests in St Peter's Square, unexpectedly walked across to meet and shake hands with the English party. In the photo, he is holding her hand in both of his and is smiling; she looks over-awed and not a little moved by the experience. But did the Pope realise that he was also shaking the hand of a saint?

On the first of next month we celebrate All Saints' Day and, according to St Paul, a Saint is someone who is 'sanctified in Christ Jesus' (1 Cor 1.2)—all who believe in Him and are made holy by His grace. In his Letter to the Romans 8:27–28, Paul tells us that 'the Spirit intercedes for the saints according to the will of God ... for those who love God ... are called according to his purpose ...'

Now I'm not making special claims for my mother, but she was 'sanctified' and 'called', being a faithful Christian woman throughout her life. Looking at the album I found the promises she made as a St John Ambulance Cadet during the war. She promised to follow 'The Code of Chivalry' and in particular 'To do my duty to God, my King and all mankind.' and 'To carry out the mottoes of the Order which are 'Pro Fide'—for the Faith; 'Pro Utilitate Hominum'—for the service of mankind.' In her Church involvement, voluntary activities and in her professional vocation as a nurse, I would say she certainly was faithful in living up to the promises made for her at baptism, those she made herself as a young Cadet, and the work she did in the service of others throughout her life.

But the point I'm trying to make, I suppose, is that perhaps we are all called to be saints? Everyone, who seeks to live their life in the light of Christ 'according to his purpose' (as best they understand it) is surely on the right track to be one with the saints.

Many of us may feel unworthy, or that we fall far short of what Christ demands of us ... take comfort in a few words from John Paul II:

'We are not the sum of our weaknesses and failures; we are the sum of the Father's love for us and our real capacity to become the image of his Son.'

Revd Jane

It's always good to keep in touch, especially during these times of lockdown. Social media is one of the newer ways to know about what's going on. The Church has set up several social-media accounts:
